Highlights

- Triodos Pioneer Impact Fund generated a return (after costs) of 3.86%, while the benchmark yielded 4.40%.
- Equity markets globally realised another positive month. In particular US technology stocks continued their strong upward trend, with Nvidia as the star performer after stellar results and a better than expected guidance. The fourth quarter earnings season was better than expected and fears of a global recession are diminishing. Small- and midcaps performed in line with their large cap counterparts.
- The fund had a positive month and benefited from quite some of its holdings beating expectations and guiding to more growth this year. Companies like First Solar, Knorr-Bremse, BESS, Strategic Education and Mueller Water all reported solid results. Advanced Drainage was one of the best performers after it upgraded its full-year outlook. Wolfspeed performed poorly after a lower than expected next quarter guidance. The fund's largest allocations are to the sectors Industrials, Consumer Discretionary and Information Technology. The fund has no exposure to Energy and Real Estate.
